only a part of the island. For other parts the localization of the totem was attested, and all the more naturally since the actual character of the institution was apparently not clear to the informant; he states that the spirit of a locality "sometimes" forbids the inhabitants to eat certain food. More detailed explanations, however, show that a permanent institution is involved, and family and village are expressly identified with it. Here, [761] [824] too, death or at least sores are mentioned as the consequences of a violation. A kind of yam, numabo, a fish, ape, birds, breadfruit, Barringtonia fruit, and nuts are mentioned as totems. The members of the coconut totem are forbidden to eat only the young nut whose eye is still red (6).
